Dear Science Students,

A warm welcome to all new and returning Science students on behalf of the entire Science Society council! My name is Nellie Bordignon and as your Science Society 2021-2022 President, I am excited about this upcoming year and our plans to make it memorable. Science at the University of Windsor is a Faculty filled with passion, discovery, and spirit. I am honoured and proud to be part of this Faculty, and as a council member on Science Society for past three years now, I am looking forward to representing all Science students throughout the upcoming year.

This year, our council will be focused on bringing students back together, allowing them to build friendships, mentors, and valuable connections within our Science community. We are committed to fostering a positive student experience with new academic and social initiatives for students to participate in. As your President, I will be launching an Externship Program that will provide students with the opportunity to explore career choices and shadow various professionals to discover a broader range of careers that their Science degree can lead them to. Stay tuned for more information as this program unfolds!

I encourage all students to get involved, and to take advantage of the services and activities Science Society offers. Whether it is getting involved as a council member, taking advantage of our MySci Mentorship Program, or attending one of our social events, Science Society offers many ways to get connected.

I hope many of you will reach out and help us make this year a memorable one together!

Yours truly,

Nellie Bordignon

Science Society President 2021-2022
